C. Dale Reis spent his career in defense electronics engineering and management, including 32 years with the Fortune 500 Raytheon Company, rising to the level of senior vice president. In 1990, when he was made a vice president of Raytheon and general manager for the company's submarine signal division in Portsmouth, R.I., his responsibilities included engineering, manufacturing, business management, marketing and overseeing support personnel, in addition to the division's 2,000 employees.

Now retired and living in Naples, Fla, Reis is a Grove City College trustee, serving on the Board since 1992.

Additional degree: Master's degree, Massachusetts Institute of Technology