

1998

The Hon. Paul J. McNulty

---

Class of 1980

In 2005, Paul J. McNulty was nominated by President Bush to serve as the U.S. deputy attorney general, the second-highest ranking official at the U.S. Department of Justice. He also was nominated by President Bush in 2001 to serve as the U.S. attorney for the Eastern District of Virginia and led the Justice Department's terrorism prosecutions following the attacks of 9/11.

In addition, McNulty worked for 11 years on Capitol Hill in a number of positions, including chief counsel for the U.S. House of Representatives Subcommittee on Crime and chief counsel and director of legislative operations for the Majority Leader of the House. Other positions in his 22 years of public service in Washington, D.C., include principal associate deputy attorney general and director of policy and communications for the Justice Department. McNulty also served as chief counsel and director of communications for the Impeachment Proceedings of President Clinton.

Until fall 2014, McNulty led the Global Corporate Compliance and Investigations practice for the law firm of Baker & McKenzie, one of the world's largest firms. He joined Baker in 2007. Earlier in his legal career, McNulty was of counsel at the law firm of Shaw Pittman, now Pillsbury Winthrop Shaw Pittman, and director of government affairs for the Legal Services Corporation. He also served as executive director of the First Freedom Coalition, a nonprofit organization promoting criminal justice reform in America, and hosted a weekly national television program called Crime and Punishment.

In 2007, McNulty received the Justice Department's highest honor for public service, the Edmund J. Randolph Award. In 1993, he received the Attorney General's Award for Distinguished Service. He is also an Honorary U.S. Marshal.

McNulty joined the Grove City College Board of Trustees in 2004. He was named Grove City College's ninth President in May 2014.

Additional degrees: Law degree, Capital University School of Law; Honorary Doctor of Laws, Grove City College; Honorary Master of Laws, Capital University School of Law

